

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Here is a story that might win a Ford if it were entered in a contest being conducted by one New England daily, but in the Bulletin it merely wins a place at the top of the column for this morning.

Down on his farm on the Squaw Rocks road, James Manly picked up his gun on a recent morning when he heard a tremendous commotion among a flock of about one hundred birds of various species that were swirling about an apple tree as they chattered and scolded in a very unusual way. Sparrows, robins, blackbirds and swallows seemed to have joined forces to combat some common enemy.

The turmoil was so unusual and so long-drawn-out that Mr. Manly came up from his garden to investigate and was amazed to see that the birds were uniting in battling against a three and a half foot black snake that had crawled up the trunk of the tree, a distance of about seven feet, and had seized a young robin from the nest where it had been hatched and developed to the point where it was nearly able to fly.

The snake held the young robin in its jaws and clung tenaciously to the tree as battalions of birds swept down upon his scaly old back and pecked and clawed at him. Right up on the danger line was the parent robin, apparently fighting repeatedly at the snake's head and frantically engaged in trying to pick the reptile's eyes out.

Procuring a long stick Mr. Manly unhesitatingly belted Mr. Snake until the writhing cuss ran out on a limb and dropped to the ground—still clinging to the young robin. A few more blows from the stick in the hands of Mr. Manly finished the snake and brought the release of a badly injured robin and the dispersal of the mixed flock of birds that had battled against the reptile.

Outraged by the invidious statements relative to the Knights of Columbus sent out from Oneco and published in the Oneco Thursday, members of the Danielson council, K. of C. of Danielson and other councils of the order in all this part of eastern Connecticut condemning in no uncertain terms not only the author of the biased propaganda but also the publication of what is manifestly troublemaking untruths and insinuations.

Members of the order here, and these include professional and business men, property owners, taxpayers and many others equally good and substantial citizens, cannot stomach any such outrageous attack as emanates from Oneco, and so less the publication of such vile insinuations. Other councils in Windham county will without question pass resolutions condemning of the entire episode. The day is passed when such unworthy attacks can go unchallenged, and members here feel that nothing less than a complete and sincere apology should quickly follow what is purely an attempt to discredit hundreds of good and loyal citizens who are members of a great brotherhood, irrespective of their race, or political affiliations. If such apologies both for the authorship and publication are not forthcoming, there are ample means of publicity to make known the attitude of the general public on such unworthy enterprises.

Rose of Lima council of this place will take action on the matter at its meeting Monday evening next.

Suffering an attack of heart disease after a rather strenuous day in the hayfield, Israel F. Chase, 72, a prominent and respected resident of East Killingly, fell in the yard at his home Thursday evening and died almost immediately.

Nothing that he had kept about the place his early evening tasks longer than was his custom. Mrs. Chase went out and sat on the steps to await her husband's return. She could not see where he lay from her position near the door, but the fact that the dog kept about the place ran back and forth to her in an unusual way led to her going out and finding the body. Medical Examiner Dr. George M. Burroughs was called and pronounced death due to heart trouble.

Mr. Chase was a native of East Killingly, a son of Israel and Polly Young Chase. He leaves his wife, a son, Arthur E. Chase, employed at the A. E. Meach store here, and a daughter, Miss Nellie M. Chase, stenographer at the Windham County National Bank. He also leaves a grandson, Clayton A. Chase.

Mrs. Frederick Wood, of the Green Hollow road, has filed suit for divorce from her husband, who this week in the town court of Killingly was fined for having assaulted her. Attachments on his property have been placed in connection with the suit. It was stated by counsel for Mrs. Wood Friday that she has gone to Philadelphia with her daughter, Anna, for a visit with relatives.

In the town court, Friday morning, Joseph Bolduc of this town was fined $25 and costs by Judge W. Fenner Woodward for reckless driving. Thomas Keegan, who pleaded guilty to having been intoxicated, was fined $2 and costs. Their appearance in court grew out of an incident in which a car driven by Buldoe made what might be termed a running high jump while being operated over the cut-off where state highway work is being done on the town farm road. Keegan was quite badly cut about the face in the accident.

Oscar and Harry Cook have so far recovered from injuries received a little more than a week ago when the car in which they were riding skidded and overturned on Hopkings hill on the state highway in Plainfield, as to be about town. Both still feel the effects of their injuries, which, happily are clearing up rapidly.

The attention of the people of Brooklyn and surrounding towns has been called to the fact that the officers of the Brooklyn Public Library have extended an invitation to the public to attend a reception at the library next Tuesday evening.

The library association has fitted up rooms on the upper floor of the library building and is inviting the public to inspect them on this date and to hear of the plans for fitting them up. There is an assembly room that will also be used as a museum, a children's room and a committee room. Invitations to next Tuesday evening's reception are being issued through the press and the association trusts that the response will bring many people to the library that evening.

Danielson people are looking forward with interest to the radio concert to be given at Wildwood park Sunday evening.

Mrs. A. V. Woodworth has returned from a month's stay at Pleasant beach. When it was only partly cloudy here about three o'clock Friday afternoon it was raining hard guns at Putnam, but ten miles away.

PUTNAM

Camp Woodstock has ended the season. The 100 or more boys, including eight from Putnam, have returned to their homes. This was the first venture of its kind of the Y. M. C. A. and was a decided success in every way.

Three county Y. committees, Hartford, Tolland and Windham, combined in establishing the camp at Woodstock, a West Woodstock, the site chosen, proved ideal for boating, bathing, fishing, hikes and nature study. During the final two weeks in camp two crews were trained in life saving, which included the proper way to rescue drowning persons and to resuscitate them when brought to shore. The instructor was William P. Duple of Woodstock, a captain of the U. S. Volunteer Life Saving Corps. Tuesday afternoon the crew work was inspected by Captain D. D. Armstrong of Providence, an inspector for the U. S. Life Saving Corps. Both crews were pronounced qualified to serve in the U. S. Volunteer Life Saving Corps and to receive the ratings and insignia. The surfmen, or members of the camp crew made up of leaders, were Truman Woodworth, E. T. Woodworth, Thane Grant, R. P. Willis and Y. M. C. A. Secretary E. T. Thins, all of Hartford county; Y. M. C. A. Secretary Elmer P. Hardy and Fred Horton, Tolland county; Secretary John H. Corbett and E. G. Kelley, Windham. The auxiliary crew made up of boys under 18 comprised: Mathewson Turner, Herbert Codlin, Leslie Downs, Palmer Dean and Nelson Broome, all of Windham county, and William Camp of Tolland county. John Boys of Pomfret won the loving cup for showing the greatest progress in development during the second period. He was the most active and energetic member of the camp. He was commended for his interest and usefulness in teaching backward boys and aiding them to earn their camp emblems. He was hailed as the champion lifter, excelled in nature study, passed his canoe test with a high mark and developed his ability to swim and dive.

Frank Darcy of Boston, formerly an alderman in this city where for some years he was a railroad foreman, with Mrs. Darcy, arrived in Putnam Friday night. They are guests of friends for a short stay.

There will be no services in the Second Congregational church during August. The church has been without a pastor since the resignation of Rev. Boynton Merrill, who was called to be assistant pastor of the New Old South church, Boston. A number of candidates have preached since Mr. Merrill left and it is expected that next month the committee to secure a permanent pastor will have something to report.

The first in a series of baseball games between the Franklin (Mass.) K. of C. and the Nightingale-Morse team of Putnam will be played here Sunday. In fact the whole series will be played here as the Day State team has no playing field of its own. The team has a high rating among the amateur teams of Massachusetts. It is rumored that Manager Nelson of the home team has a new pitcher to try out. Just what the new addition to the team is being kept in the dark but it is promised that his appearance will materially strengthen the team.

Members of the Child family, one of the oldest families in Windham county, are to hold their annual reunion at Roseland park, August 9th.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Gleason, Jr., of Lowell, Mass., are at the home of Gleason's parents on Center street, during Mr. Gleason's vacation.

At last the matter of a silent policeman for Bugbee square has been settled. Friday morning workmen began laying a cement foundation upon which will be placed the new up-to-date office.

The question of installing the flashing traffic director has been hanging fire since last December when the council members of the retiring Marcy administration voted to purchase the apparatus. The members of the incoming council were not satisfied that there was need for the expenditure, consequently held up payment on the bill. At the July meeting the question was brought up for discussion, and the matter was referred to a committee with power to act. After investigation it has been decided that the city should retain the dummy instead of sending it back to the manufacturer. The cement base that was put in place Friday is three feet square and two feet high. As soon as this has dried, the flashing light will be placed upon it. The apparatus works automatically, and the gas generator requires attention only once every few months.

The circulation at the Putnam Public library continues large, according to Miss Emma Kinney, the librarian. During the summer months there is usually a large dropping off in the number of readers. Recently a long list of recent fiction and non-fiction books has been placed in circulation.

During August, Thursday night services are to be omitted at the Baptist church.

Y.; Mrs. Ida McDermott of New London and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur James and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph St. Germaine of Danielson. During the evening refreshments were served to the guests.

He will join his daughter, who has been spending the summer in England, and she will return home with him. He expects to be gone four or five weeks.

The ambulance was called to the home of Mrs. John Jarvis on Church street, at nine o'clock Friday morning.
